

Call for interest: AI in Fashion Education Online Symposium

The IFFTI Education Initiative Sub-Committee is hosting an online symposium on the theme of AI in Fashion Education in the autumn.

We are looking to invite our members who have experience in teaching and learning with AI to be part of the panel to discuss the topics:

- The reality of AI in fashion: what do we consider real in an artificial world?
- Educating AI: what fashion knowledge and skills we need feed to build the AI machine?
- AI ethics and values: how do we teach AI our ethics and values?

We are looking for experienced educators and researchers to take part in this session to help us understand and answer some of the critical questions on AI in fashion education.

If you would like to take part in this panel, please contact us with a brief explanation of your subject knowledge and how the IFFTI community can learn from your expertise. Your contribution is important to our community's needs to learn about this fast-changing subject of AI and its effects on the fashion industry.

We would like to receive applications by 1 October 2025.

The symposium will be jointly held by Amsterdam Fashion Institute and London College of Fashion, with a session for our Asia/Oceania members and a session for our European/Americas members.

In case of interest, do send a short CV, title and short abstract to @ IFFTISecretariat

Best Wishes,

IFFTI Education Initiative Sub-Committee
